

Eduardo J. Martinez, Moody's Analytics

Eduardo J. Martinez is a senior economist in the Moody's Analytics West Chester office. As an analyst for the California economy, Ed is responsible for the economic forecasts for the state and its major metro areas. He also follows international trade patterns of the states and metro areas, providing insight into the global linkages of each region of the U.S. economy. Before joining Moody's Analytics, Eduardo worked for the Los Angeles County Economic Development Corp., U.S. State Department, and Bureau of Labor Statistics. He earned a master's degree in economics at the California State University, Long Beach and a bachelor's degree at the California State University, Fullerton.