To Whom It May Concern,

NO, don't do it.

Regarding PG&E or any other company having the right or access to control electricity, gas or any other service to my house or any one else in the beginning of big brother controlling and spying.

No one has the right to control services to or in my house. If you want to pay for my services (provide these services for free) then you have a right. If not, forget it.

Do you want them to control your services in your own home, I think not.
