My husband and I have lived in Carlsbad for over ten years, and I have lived in California all of my life. We moved to Carlsbad because the city cares about its residents and businesses and works to keep our city beautiful and people-friendly. One of the ways it does this is to make sure new building and expansion are well planned to meet growth needs in the best and most logical way.

The new plant that NRG West is proposing to build on our coastline is neither. A plant on the coastline brings nothing positive to Carlsbad or to California. Yes, more power sources are needed. Yes, a green, environmentally-friendly operation is welcomed BUT the plant should be placed in the logical, proper place--Carlsbad's industrial area, east of El Camino Real and north of Palomar Airport Road.

Please listen to the people who live here. This plant should be built where its aim to provide more power in an environmentally responsible way is truly met. Don't let NRG build it on our coastline.

Thank you for allowing us to present our views
