Dear Mr. Cieslak

Thank you for taking time to express your concerns about the proposed Rice Solar Energy Project (09-AFC-10). We are very early in our process for evaluating the proposal, but I can tell you that we will be assessing the proposed project's effects to and the historical significance of the Rice Army Airfield, as well as evaluating Alternatives to the proposed project. I have cc'd your note to our technical specialists in these fields. We are also docketing your note so that it is accepted into the record for this project.

Sincerely,
 John

 How can you allow a massive social engineering blight to be established on hallowed ground of American history? The Desert Training Center facilities prepared our troops to keep the world free and now you are surrendering it to a minimally productive "fell good" project. Personally, I feel that you should relocate this endeavor to a place that would demonstrate your commitment to the rights and freedoms of the people of California and the United States.

Why not put it on the fringes of the Chocolate Mountains Gunnery range? The generation conditions in that area are similar to (and possibly better than) what exists in the Rice area. The proximity to military activity would also offer a modicum of security that can not be found in the proposed area.

There is precedence for utilization of the Chocolate Mountains for such as commercial action as the last time we had a commie president there was a sweet deal made with an adjacent gold mine, which happened to be partially owned by the husband of a California Senator (Oh yeah, under community property, she profited too).

I get it that for the current tide of social engineering to advance you must erase all signs of courage and freedom but if that is the chosen path for this project, it could become apparent that those how respect the core values of this country are more determined than the tree huggers that fell that flies in Colton or minnows in San Diego stream are more important than people.

Do not desecrate American history!!!! You want green energy, why not put windmills on the Malibu hills to in the Sepulveda pass? Then the lying thieving tree huggers can see the impact of the servitude and destruction they wish to impose on the free people.

Relocate the project or forget it.
